Landscaping plans shelved for now

This is the third call and maybe it will be a charm, as the saying goes. The Santa Clara Valley Water District said long ago they were going to landscape that land along their channel off San Tomas Aquino Road. I called several months ago and someone from the district said they were going to do it this year. Just when this year do they mean? I drive along there almost every day and that fence and bare ground looks like a concentration camp.

FED UP

Editor's note: According to Steve Renfro of the water district, it isn't likely that the landscaping will be done in the near future. Renfro said he designed the project two and a half years ago but a number of factors have delayed it since then — including drought, district manpower shortages and, now, Proposition 13. "The whole thing's in limbo right now," Renfro said.

The coach at the West Valley Gymnastics School put out a new policy that each gymnast has to raise their own money for travel and equipment. I question the legality of that move since I have to take my daughter to all her meets. When it's capital gain I can't see how they can legally charge.

IRRITATED

Editor's note: According to a spokesperson for the school, the students were given a choice — either raise money through fund-raisers or have the rates for instruction raised. "It's the only way we can get the kids to the meets," she said.

The spokesperson also refuted the claim that parents provide all transportation, saying that the school picks up the tab for all overnight lodging, if needed, for the students and also provides transportation for students whose parents don't accompany them. "We went to Hawaii for a meet and the parents didn't pay for that," she noted.

Whatever happened to the city plan to put up service club signs on the loop street? It's been months and I haven't heard anything else.

INTERESTED

Editor's note: According to Ted Rogers of the Chamber of Commerce, the problem is that no agreement has been reached among the various service clubs as to exactly what kind of signs they want. Rogers said one meeting was held some time ago and another should be held within the next two to three weeks. If they can reach agreement on the type of signs to be erected at that time, Rogers says, the next step would be to get approval from the Planning Commission and the City Council.

Have you seen those children playing in the dirty, stagnant water of Los Gatos Creek at the Hamilton avenue crossing? I don't feel it's very healthy for them.

Concerned

Editor's note: Our reporter went out to check on your complaint last Thursday but there were no children in the creek at that time. According to Jerry Miller, communications supervisor for the Campbell Police Department, the city occasionally receives complaints about youngsters swimming in Los Gatos Creek behind Flagg's restaurant and officers go out and ask the swimmers to leave. He says there have been no complaints recently.

By November

Possible Ainsley approval

ALTHOUGH THE San Jose Planning Department rejected an environmental impact report (EIR) for the latest proposed development of the Ainsley property at Bascom and Hamilton avenues, one San Jose planner says there's a good chance a revised project could be okayed by November.

According to Noel Ameele of the San Jose Planning Department, the present application is "probably the most viable proposal we've had for the site."

"This is probably the best proposal we've seen," Ameele said, "but it's premature to assume that it will be approved. The application pretty well corrolates with San Jose's general plan but it could be denied because of inconsistencies in that general plan."

The property has been the subject of a long line of development proposals dating back to the 1960's, according to Ameele. The present project includes 15 acres of commercial development, 10 tennis courts, seven acres of office development and 750 plus or minus residential units.

The 750 units represented an increase of 171 over the original plan calling for 579. That incongruity along with possible problems with increased traffic in the area resulted in the rejection of the EIR.

As Ameele put it, "The (San Jose city) staff was concerned with the accuracy of the data presented. The consultants for the applicants are now supplying us with revised data, and as soon as we get that data we'll go to the (San Jose) Planning Commission with it."

The commission, according to Ameele, is scheduled to re-examine the EIR at its Sept. 6 meeting and if it approves the revised plan, its recommendation will be sent to the San Jose City Council Sept. 20.

"If all goes smoothly with the project the City Council could give final approval sometime in November," Ameele said.

He added, however, that the City of San Jose is currently considering some revisions to its general plan that could delay the project.

New contract negotiations are currently under way between the society and county, and county supervisor Rod Diridon expresses confidence that an agreement will be reached before the current contract expires Nov. 30.

All-Stars to Series

FOR THE SECOND time in two years Campbell has a representative in a youth baseball World Series.

The Campbell Moreland Pony League All-Stars avenged an earlier defeat by sweeping a doubleheader from Southwest Seattle, 12-0 and 7-2, to capture the Pony Western Regionals Sunday in Kennewick, Wash.

CM's victory sends it into the Pony World Series in National City, near San Diego. The locals opened series play Wednesday night.

JEREMY RUDE, 3 , struggles to get a drink of water while his sister waits her turn at John D. Morgan Park. Apparently they were seeking relief from the heat wave that engulfed the area earlier this month; relief appears to be in sight as temperatures have cooled off to bearable levels in recent days.

Flap over funding

County, humane society to part company?

By CHUCK HILDEBRAND

Campbell citizens, along with the rest of Santa Clara county, may have to find a new place to take stray and unwanted animals starting December 1.

Unless the county and the Humane Society of Santa Clara County can reach agreement on a new animal processing contract by that time, the Santa Clara-based society does not intend to renew the agreement.

Robinita Lindsey, president of the Humane Society, claims that the society operated at a deficit with the $261,000 doled out by the county last year.

"I refuse to compromise the health of the animals," Lindsey said. "We're trying to upgrade to the basic minimum standards now, but it's going to cost money and we lost $54,000 last year as it was."

IN A LETTER to county supervisor Rod Diridon dated July 26, which revealed the society's plans not to continue its association with the county, Lindsey said she was "disappointed, to say the least, that in refusing to negotiate or consider a redistribution of funds already allocated to Animal Control, your representatives stated that the county is 'pleased' with the level of services received at the Humane Society these past two years . . ."

She went on to accuse the county of tolerating sub-standard, or, as she put it, "almost legal" housing and care of the animals.

According to Lindsey, the society currently receives $5 per animal for services rendered — a figure she claims is grossly inadequate and should be more in the neighborhood of $20.

She conceded that the shelter is "just now emerging from a trouble-ridden past."

But she added that "although the county may be willing to have things at the shelter remain as they were before, you (the county) should be consciously aware that this board of directors has assumed its responsibility in a most serious manner and under no circumstances will it jeopardize and/or compromise the animals or their rights in this county or will it be engaged in or endorse illegal or questionable activities."

IF THE county-humane society agreement is indeed severed, according to Lindsey, the humane society will remain open to pets brought in by private individuals only.

HOWEVER, DIRIDON doesn't feel that the dissolution of the agreement is likely.

"It (the contract renewal) is in negotiation right now," Diridon said. "We do need those services and we value our relationship with the humane society. It's just a matter of us sitting down and working out a figure that both sides can live with.

"We will undoubtedly pay more than what we did last year," Diridon added. "It's just a matter of how much more."

Diridon said the society's asking price is now in the $600,000-$1,000,000 class and noted that "we can't afford to inject that kind of money into the humane society when we're losing a lot of our property tax revenues to Proposition 13.

"We haven't increased any of our other programs at that rate," Diridon reasoned "and some of those are state-mandated."

He called the current negotiations "active, honest and two-sided" and expressed confidence that the two sides could come to an agreement before the current contract expires.

Diridon claimed that as a supervisor he had helped institute improvements in the animal handling process and said "there is no way I will jeopardize the animals."

FORMULA FOR SUCCESS: Organized citizen programs. lobbying plus public sympathy equals

We care for our seniors

A SAN JOSE CITY staffer recently declared the people of this county fulfill their feeling of social responsibility by providing for senior citizens. He was speaking of low-cost housing but, in Campbell, that theory could have broader application.

A survey of services available for seniors shows Campbell officials, as well as those on the county and state level, have taken their responsibility to seniors seriously. From housing to transportation. From legal services to recreation. Latest proposals are for a county-funded taxi subsidy service and a city drop-in center for seniors (55 and older).

We don't argue that seniors shouldn't have what they need and, within reason, what they want. But we do feel the social responsibility scale is tipped dramatically in one direction.

One reason for the disproportionate share of services and programs for seniors is that group's very effective lobbying effort when an issue of concern comes before city officials. Seniors don't just write a letter or make a phone call. They also show up in force to show support for their spokesmen.

Maybe the youth and other groups which feel they deserve a bigger "piece of the pie" could learn from them.

Sale money to go for recreation

THE $29,500 the City of Campbell received in its sale of the former Boy Scout building site at Third and Grant streets will be used for recreational purposes, in accordance with a condition of the original donation of the land by the Kiwanis Club.

In addition, Planning Commissioner Frank Kukuk suggested at the commission's August 9 meeting that the proceeds from the sale be used to have something done on behalf of the Kiwanis Club.

According to commission secretary Terry Pelton, the idea is to prevent people from forgetting that the Kiwanis Club was responsible for the original development of the Boy Scout building.

"The thinking was, 'Let's give credit where credit is due,'" Pelton said.

MAN TAKES OWN LIFE

A 36-year-old Campbell man, reportedly despondent over financial and health problems, apparently took his own life last Wednesday morning, according to Campbell police.

Police said William Houston Tipps, 15 Superior drive, was found lying on his back with a rifle by his side and blood about his mouth and face.

Campbell paramedics were called but Tipps was pronounced dead at the scene.

Police indicated a note was found leading them to believe that Tipps committed suicide.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD

The body of Mary I. Urrea was found by Campbell police after neighbors became concerned when she was not seen for three days. Police said she apparently had been dead for a day or two.

Cause of death was unknown but police believe she suffered from cirrhosis of the liver and a pancreas ailment.

Prep sports: Where will funding come from now?

By CHUCK HILDEBRAND

CAN HIGH school athletic programs survvive the property tax revolt that led to the passage of Proposition 13 in June and threatened a sizeable chunk of school district income?

Without outside help, it's extremely doubtful. The Campbell Union High School District, along with several others in the area, originally planned to eliminate all prep sports in the wake of Proposition 13 and some chopping is inevitable when district and state budget surpluses are no longer available.

Where, then, can this outside help come from?

Three possible sources come to mind immediately — the athletes themselves, the individual booster clubs and the student bodies.

Kevin Olsen, a Leigh high school student and the student representative on the CUHSD board of trustees, thinks the student bodies can foot a large portion of the bill with their own funds.

Under Olsen's plan, $6,200 of the projected $29,500 ASB budget at Leigh could be used to fund six varsity sports, including football, during the 1978-79 school year.

HIS PLAN is contingent on three assumptions — that volunteer coaches can be found for the teams, that the district would have an option to provide transportation and that parental, rather than staff, supervision at games would be allowed.

If the plan worked out, Olsen says, it could be implemented on a larger scale in 1979-80, when funds from district and state surpluses may not be available.

Booster clubs could also take a more active role in the funding of athletic programs.

Jack Murdick, president of the Campbell high school boosters club, says his organization is in the process of building a weight room on campus as part of its anticipated role in the future of Campbell athletics.

"Proposition 13 has been blamed for everything from typhoid to ignorance," Murdick said. "We'll just have to wait and see what will be cut and then try to pick up the tab for what's left out."

At present, the district plans to eliminate frosh football in 1979 and junior varsity boys soccer and varsity golf this school year. In addition, the frosh-soph baseball schedule for the coming year will be reduced from 16 league games to eight.

The baseball reduction alone may cost the eight programs top-notch players and possibly undermine the quality of competition in the West Valley Athletic League, generally considered among the strongest baseball loops in the Central Coast Section.

Bill Roberts, who recently won the Campbell Moreland Pony League batting championship, originally was headed for Campbell high but instead will attend Bellarmine. He says the primary reason is the reduced WVAL frosh-soph baseball schedule.

"They have freshman, junior varsity and varsity programs at Bellarmine, and they all play a 24-game schedule," Roberts explained.

Another funding possibility lies in the charging of a participatory fee. This was done at Milpitas and Ayer high schools in Milpitas as part of the "Save Our Sports" campaign that salvaged the athletic programs there after the Milpitas Unified School District eliminated funding.

In Milpitas the fee charged was $20 — a sum that could be adjusted according to the availability of funds from other sources here.

One point has become apparent to prep sports fans — the school districts won't be footing the entire sports bill too much longer and if the programs are to survive those directly involved will have to shoulder at least part of the burden.

PRESS conducts informal survey

By VICKI JOHNSEN

Don't tell me that question's hard. After eight double-decker strawberry and chocolate cones, believe me, I know.

When you come right down to it, though, all eight Campbell creameries are number one . . . at something.

Take size. You can't beat Pruneyard's Swensen's in size. There, they pile a whole half pound of fresh factory ice cream into a seemingly tiny cone.

For price, Sav-On, 100 N. San Tomas Aquino rd. and Westgate's Thrifty are surely first. Quality for both stores is ditto, cone cost inexpensive, and amount not-as-much but, for the price, plenty.

For scenery and smell the Chocolate Factory in El Paseo de Saratoga is the ultimate for cone selling establishments around. The spot is immaculate, the aroma sweet, and the ice cream's not too bad either.

If symmetry is what you're into, symmetry is what you get at Vanilla Fudge Ice Cream and Candies, 2485 Winchester blvd. In all my life I have never seen a shapelier cone, perfect in size and shape and quite flavorful.

The ice cream parlor in Campbell with the fastest and friendliest service is Loard's, 1444 Pollard rd. The girls there keep a clean and happy shop and serve cones that are larger than most.

There's something about the texture of an ice cream cone that, so to speak, either makes it or breaks it. At Lyndon's, Payne avenue and Winchester boulevard, they've made it by mastering the art of cone creaminess.

A very important factor, but not always the most important, is flavor. A cone can taste just great, yet make the biggest mess. Baskins Robbins (31 Flavors), 1720 Campbell ave., works minus the mess, but maintains the best flavor.

Indeed, every cone shop in Campbell has something very important going for it. However, as the saying goes . . . nobody's perfect.

While Sav-On and Thrifty may have the best price, for instance, one has to fight the crowds to get a simple cone.

Or at Loard's, the girls and cones are truly sweet, but if the girls melted as fast as the cones, a problem would definitely develop.

I didn't lie when I said Lyndon's cones were the creamiest, nor will I lie by reporting that their smoothness costs a bit much.

Swensen's does give you more for your money, yet the placement of ice cream onto cone makes a mess more than anything else.

While the Chocolate Factory had a very fine interior decorator, the store got unlucky with its pricer. Cones are tasty and served quick, but are too small to be tagged 85 cents.

It seems the shapelier something is, the better it is and Vanilla Fudge cones follow true to form. It is best, though to be truly alert when entering the shop. Suffering from mass cluttering, one has to find the cone counter through the gifts, around the cards, and over the candy.

Of course, that leaves us with one. I'm not saying Baskin Robbins was totally flawless, just the best in Campbell. On a scale from 1-10 I had to rank the cost 8 (66 cents for two scoops of ice cream isn't bad), flavor 10, wait 8 (one notch down for every customer ahead of me), shape 9, texture 8, melting speed 9, cone quality 5 (every shop equalled in this area), atmosphere 9, and overall 8.5.

Runner-ups were Chocolate Factory with a secure 8, and Swensen's and Vanilla Fudge receiving 7 apiece.

Harriet Avenue to be renamed?

If the Campbell City Council follows the pattern, Harriet Avenue, south of Westmont Avenue, will have a new name August 28.

On that date, the council will decide at their regular meeting whether to follow the recommendation of the planning commission and change the name to Abbott Avenue, or keep the original title.

According to Bruce Powell, staff advisor to the planning commission, the foremost reason why the commission recommended the name alteration was that on the map there are too many Harriet avenues, roads, or streets.

Powell explained that when Harriet Avenue reaches Westmont Avenue the street gets offset and "doesn't pick-up for quite awhile."

The recommendation is to name the new road extention where single family homes are currently under construction Abbott Avenue (the name of the nearer connecting road) to avoid confusion.

Loading zone set for Morgan Park

An experimental 15-minute loading zone in the Budd Avenue parking lot of John D. Morgan Park was adopted last Monday night by the Campbell City Council.

According to City Manager Bob Stephens, several people have been ticketed in the past for leaving their vehicles illegally parked while unloading children or supplies.

For the next six months at least, two parking spots will be set aside for loading purposes only. Stephens said the project will be evaluated at the end of six months and a final decision made on whether to make the zones permanent.

Stephens also said the city staff is working on the possibility of using the Community Room of the city library as a senior citizens center, and should have some recommendations on the matter when the City Council next meets Aug. 28.

Humane society-county clash

and the county must look elsewhere to dispose of its stray animals, Diridon said that "all possible contingencies" were being looked into but that nothing solid had been planned yet.

"WE FEEL it is our responsibility to be more than a collection and disposal center," Lindsey said. "You can't legislate kindness — it has to be taught. That's one of our purposes as a humane society and we can't do it if we're losing money on disposal and pound service."

Lindsey also expressed a desire to pursue other functions she thinks the society ought to be concentrating on — including the expansion of spay and neuter services so that fewer unwanted animals will turn up at the shelter. But without more money that can't be done.

She said her main concern is the well-being of the animals and fears that if the county establishes its own center or contracts to have the animals processed by somebody else, they will suffer.

"They (county officials) don't have to listen to animals being stuffed into the chamber," she said. "We once did. Now we inject them with a lethal drug so that their deaths are as painless as possible. But it costs money.

"To make them (the animals) sleep in their own body wastes is cruel," she added. "To not feed them properly is cruel. We try to do our best but it costs money and it isn't easy when you have over 500 animals."

"We're eager to help the county out by being a disposal facility until it builds its own," Lindsey concluded, "but we just can't afford it on the money the county wants to give us."

THE DEVIL MADE HIM DO IT

A 28-year-old Campbell man was placed on a 72-hour hold at Valley Medical Center after allegedly using a mailbox to break approximately 15 plate glass windows at St. Lucy's Church, 2350 Winchester blvd., last Tuesday, according to police.

Police reports indicate the man broke the windows because he thought they represented evil and he heard the voice of the devil chasing him.

Total damage to the windows was estimated at $400.

GUNS, DIMES TAKEN

A total of $2,100 worth of goods, including three handguns, several rings and about $300 worth of dimes, was taken Wednesday afternoon from a Boise drive residence, according to police.

Police said one of the guns allegedly taken was a 1934 Hunter .22 caliber revolver worth about $800.

INDECENT EXPOSURE

Two separate cases of indecent exposure were reported to Campbell police last week — one on Second Street last Tuesday and the other last Thursday in the front parking lot of The Factory.

Both perpetrators escaped, according to police.

A COSTLY RIDE

A 20-year-old Mountain View man was beaten up and robbed of $25 and some wine by two men he had been hitchhiking with, who dumped him on Highway 17 near the Camden avenue exit, police reported.

The man told police he met his assailants while hitchhiking a few days earlier, and that the three were on their way to Santa Cruz when the alleged assault occurred.

Santa Cruz police later arrested two San Jose men, ages 27 and 24, after an all points bulletin had been issued for their van.

TOGO'S BROKEN INTO

Togo's sandwich shop, 866 E. Campbell ave., was broken into and robbed of an unknown quantity of coins last Sunday night, police said.

The eatery was closed at the time and the intruders touched off an alarm, which attracted police.

TV, SPEAKERS SWIPED

A color television and stereo speakers valued at $820 were stolen last Tuesday from a W. Hacienda avenue apartment, according to police.

A witness reported seeing a male and a female carrying something out of the apartment at the approximate time of the burglary, but police had no suspects.

HAMILTON ROBBERY

A West Hamilton avenue apartment dweller was allegedly robbed of $725 worth of goods, including a camera, rings and coins, last Monday, police said.

★★ Bulletin ★★

Some San Jose city council members and San Jose homeowner groups have called for Councilman David Runyon's removal from his post, in the wake of news that Runyon was arrested and jailed early Sunday following another clash with police.

Runyon was booked on charges of battery, resisting arrest and being drunk in public, and released on his own recognizance Sunday morning. He had been found asleep in the car of a stranger after midnight Sunday morning, was taken into custody, and reportedly became violent at the county jail.

A year ago Runyon was convicted of interfering with a police officer following an incident outside a San Jose restaurant.

For further developments and council comment on the issue, see next week's San Jose SUN.

Consumers corner

Hairpiece gave him a harrowing experience

Send all mail for this column to P.O. Box 311, Palo Alto, Ca. 94302 or call 494-1858 for consumer advice.

I bought a hairpiece for $1,378 in Santa Clara last year. It had flaws and was replaced at no charge with a second one that also developed flaws. Bear in mind that these hairpieces are represented as being "undetectible" and I was told that I could swim, dive, etc. and the hair would look completely natural. Not so.

The hair of the hairpiece, when wet, will not lie back against the scalp in normal fashion because the hair is attached in clumps to the base. Before purchase, I was told that the hairpiece would withstand "anything" including strenuous outdoor activities — after purchase and after a complaint to the seller, the buyer is informed that it's "abuse" if he engages in these activities or uses a hairdryer.

The hair in my hairpiece has faded and the base has separated along a clear plastic insert. Once this wig is affixed and in position, it's impossible to effectively clean the hair and scalp. Anyone with dandruff or a dermatological problem will very soon discover that a greasy, moist and odoriferous mat will build up at great discomfort to the wearer.

This letter is written to inform your readers that "all is not as it seems" and the advertising in the hairpiece market is shallow and not fully informative.

Robert Meacher,
Santa Clara.

Contracts in the hairpiece marketplace aren't standard. The seller charges what he thinks the traffic will bear. The buyer will seldom, if ever, receive written instructions about the care of the hairpiece and will never be told of the disadvantages and problems that can be encountered.

Mr. Meacher's hairpiece was covered by a limited warranty and the seller informed him that a replacement could be received for $250, the dealer's cost. This points up the huge profit margin available to the dealer who holds a franchise. The franchisor usually receives $500 or more from each sale which entitles the seller to the franchisor's name and the use of photos and endorsements of top athletes like Sal Bando and Rick Barry.

Mr. Meacher has paid a total of nearly $1,700 in six months and is locked into continuing problems with the vendor. Once the hairpiece has been purchased and worn, it is a difficult thing to say "the Hell with it" and again appear before your friends, customers and business acquaintances with a naked skull — psychological shock!

Individuals and firms dealing with different methods of hair replacement, including wigs, should outline in writing the advantages, price and a clear, highly defined full warranty. A 60 day unconditional trial period should also be mandatory.

Currently there are limited standards for the persons selling, styling and fitting these hairpieces which leaves many buyers in the hands of incompetent non-professionals for the fitting and maintenance of what can be, in many cases, a prosthetic device. Charges should be, at least, semi-standardized and customers should be made aware of the large franchise fees included in the price of the wig. Services should not (by law) be denied to anyone because of a dispute or dissatisfaction with the services already rendered.

Hunt for bargains in back-to-school buying

By SHIRLEY TALLMAN

Unfortunately, it's that time of year again when we see how much the kids have grown over summer vacation. It's called back-to-school shopping!

With seven children in our family back-to-school shopping takes on awesome proportions. In self-defense, we've learned to sniff out the bargains and make as many purchases as we can at below-retail prices.

One good way to do this is to shop at factory outlets. These are stores run by manufacturers of clothing, shoes, fabrics and other products. The stock is usually a manufacturer's over-runs, discontinued lines, mill ends, second-quality items and other goods the company wants to sell quickly or can't distribute through its normal retail channels. At these warehouses it is quite possible to realize savings from 25 percent to 50 percent off retail prices.

These factory outlets count on high turnover and low overhead to keep their prices down. But you may find that customer services have been cut down also. Frequently, you wait on yourself and you may find merchandise crowded onto racks or piled on counters. The dressing rooms may not be private and it may take a little longer to pay for merchandise. But often the substantial savings found at these outlets more than compensate for the disadvantages.

This week we took our four daughters to the Gunne Sax Warehouse on Second street in San Francisco. We bought them dresses that were priced at least 50 percent below the regular retail prices here in San Jose. The selection was good, the styles comparable to those we'd seen at our local stores, and the service not much worse. (Most stores don't specialize in service anymore, anyway). In one afternoon we saved more than $100 for needed school clothes. I emphasize the word needed because it's no saving to buy clothes on impulse or that you won't wear. (Incidentally, there are other factories near the Gunne Sax in San Francisco that also have terrific bargains.)

Some of these factory outlets deal on a cash basis only, so be sure to take enough money or your checkbook along. There are some that will take credit cards, but if you're in doubt or short of cash it would be best to check first.

There are, of course, a few common sense rules to follow when shopping at these warehouses. Since labels are often missing, you can't know for sure whether you're buying top quality goods at reduced prices. So be sure to check carefully any items you're considering. Also, check to be sure that labels giving care instructions haven't been removed. Most of these outlets do not allow refunds or exchanges so be careful to see that all clothes fit properly before you buy.

Items marked "irregular" usually mean they have minor defects. These frequently won't affect their durability or appearance. If they're marked "seconds," the defects are usually more ious.

If you're not sure where to find manufacturer's outlets in the Bay Area, you can send for a paperback guide entitled, "Bargain Hunting In The Bay Area," Wing Bow Press, c/o Bookpeople, 2940 Seventh Street, Berkeley, Calif. 94710. This publication runs about $3.50 plus postage.

Send all mail for this column to P.O. Box 829, Milpitas, Ca. 95035.

Olga

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Little lovebird brushes fragile wing against your windowpane, and then quickly flies away. Convert your windowsill into feeding station, Ari, and then see what happens. Week ends with a song.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Capricorn enters picture and problem is presented. If you put your heads together, Taurus, you and Cap can come up with a reasonable solution. When speaking with loved one keep your words sweet and tender — you never know when you may have to eat them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Listen, Gem, week ahead apt to be one filled with confusion. Move slowly. Study words to Taurus for key. As week draws to a close your energy returns and you see proverbial light at the end of the tunnel. By the way, when you get there, Gem, kindly turn it out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hey Moonbaby, you're on your way up, but the trip won't be an easy one. The stairway winds and you may tire. Keeping goal in mind will give you energy to continue. When you reach the top you may look over the banister if you promise not to spit into stairwell.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): In order to see eye-to-eye concerning important issue, Leo, it may be necessary to first stand toe-to-toe. If you're flexible, by last day it's sure to be cheek-to-cheek. Week ends with a pinch.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): No need to wear your dignified face this week, Virgo, everyone loves you. Well, almost everyone. Secrets are revealed which warm your sweet little heart. You discover that solution to present problem is a piece of cake.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You have good roots, Libra, but, until you decide to branch out, you're not going to flower to your fullest. Message comes your way which has more meanings than a Fellini film. Read between the lines. Week cuddles to a close.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Memories highlighted. You recall pleasure but forget pain. Nature is trying to tell you something, Scorp, and you'd be wise to listen. Virgo enters picture. Week ends on key of D for drama.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A door closes. In endings there are always beginnings, if we can only see. Concerning the outlay of money — let your terms be "spot cash." Stand firm by the ramparts. Week apt to end rather weakly. Sorry, Saj.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Having strong convictions is one thing, Cap, but being cocksure day-in and day-out is another matter completely. The truly wise suffer thoughtful uncertainty occasionally. Now suffer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Game you play has predictable ending, Aquarius. You and partner both know the score, so don't try to play the role of the innocent bystander. Message clears. On last day you may be tempted to bend the rules. Don't.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Happiness can be yours, Pisces, but would you recognize it if you saw it? Happiness has no special color, you know, but it does shine — perhaps in someone else's eyes.

Take doubleheader

CM All-Stars battle to tourney victory

By CHUCK HILDEBRAND

KENNEWICK, WASH. — Like a battle-scarred, ringwise boxer, it's hard to keep the Campbell Moreland Pony League All-Stars on the deck.

In the Northern California Regional tournament at Campbell's John D. Morgan Park two weeks ago, Diablo Valley had CM on the canvas but the locals gamely punched their way to two narrow decisions in a Sunday doubleheader for the tourney championship.

Last Friday in the Western Divisionals here, Southwest Seattle's 6-4 victory again shoved CM up against the ropes — and again it came up swinging.

Campbell Moreland gained the finals of the double-elimination tourney by ousting Wilmington, Calif. 8-4 Saturday — and then let fly with its haymakers Sunday, swamping Seattle 12-0 and 7-2 Sunday.

As a result, Campbell challenged the representative of the Eastern Division last night and faced another contest tonight, win or lose, at the World Series in National City, near San Diego.

Teams from the Southern and Northern divisions along with Hawaii and host National City are also entered in the six-team, double-elimination affair, which concludes Sunday.

If Campbell Moreland's performance Sunday is any indication, the Western champions will be difficult to contain.

Campbell's slumbering offense awoke with a vengeance, banging out 22 hits in the two games with Bill Roberts, John Murphy and Paul Sargis leading the assault.

Murphy was four for seven in the two contests, including a double, and made a somersaulting catch in right field to rob a Seattle hitter of an extra base blow in the second game.

Roberts, showing the form that brought him this season's batting championship, clubbed a two-run homer and had two doubles.

Sargis walloped a two-run roundtripper and was flawless defensively at shortstop throughout the tourney.

Almost lost in the torrent of base hits was the mound stinginess of Rich Alvarez and Brett Blackwell.

Alvarez and Blackwell allowed only a walk and no hits during the first game, which was called after Campbell rolled up a 12-run bulge after five innings.

Alvarez struck out four in his three innings of work and Blackwell totalled three, all in the fifth when he struck out the side.

The pair again divided the chores in the second game, Alvarez logging four innings of two-hit, two-run ball and Blackwell permitting one single in his three cantos.

Alvarez's effectiveness wasn't unexpected since he winged a one-hit, 13 strikeout gem at Wilmington in a 1-0 CM squeaker Thursday and had recorded 148 K's in 75 regular-season innings.

But Blackwell had been hit hard in his only previous post-season outing, and his resurgence gave Manager Bud Stallings' already deep mound staff one more strong arm.

Sargis opened tournament play by checking host Kennewick on three hits in a 3-0 CM verdict Wednesday. Alvarez's silencing of the Wilmington bats Thursday sent the Northern Californians against Seattle Friday.

But Campbell, looking tired and tense, stranded 10 runners and a dubious decision by one of the umpires resulted in three first-inning Seattle runs.

After Seattle's leadoff batter worked Campbell starter Murphy for a walk, the next batter grounded to second baseman Steve Clinton, who tossed to Sargis for the force at second.

But the umpire ruled that Sargis did not touch the bag while pivoting, called both runners safe — and Seattle scored three runs after two were out in the inning.

Taking advantage of control lapses by the Seattle pitcher, CM tied it in the fourth. Murphy axed a two-run single in the third and was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to force across the tying tally.

But the Northwesterners broke it open in the seventh by scoring three times against reliever Bob Straight, who came through with a gutty performance after coming on for Murphy in the second but ran out of gas in the seventh.

With the team on the brink of elimination, Stallings decided the best thing for the players was a bit of relaxation. So he cancelled practice Saturday afternoon and the whole team went swimming and forgot baseball for a while.

Everyone but Roberts, anyway. He went across the street on his own for extra batting practice — and it paid off that night when his three RBI's paced Campbell past Wilmington.

His first single, coupled with two walks and four of Wilmington's fatal 10 errors, pushed Campbell ahead 2-0 in the first. He and Clinton added RBI singles in the sixth and Sargis ripped a run-scoring double as Campbell upped its edge to 6-1 in the middle of the sixth.

But Sargis, who struggled throughout the encounter but managed to scatter the nine Wilmington hits, was touched for three runs in the sixth as the losers narrowed the gap to 6-4.

Straight scored on a passed ball in the seventh and Roberts' infield roller cashed in the final Campbell run.

That brought it down to Seattle and Campbell again — in a doubleheader that almost wasn't played because of a rainstorm that drenched the Kennewick area Sunday morning.

But the rain slackened by noon and a helicopter was brought in to dry the outfield, so the first contest got underway at 2 p.m. as scheduled.

Not long after that, Seattle drowned in a tidal wave of Campbell runs.

Only once was either game in doubt — that being in the first inning of the second game when Alvarez, ahead 3-0, got in trouble as the result of a bloop single, an error, a walk and a hit batsman.

First baseman Eddie Rodriguez saved the day, diving to his right to smother a sharp grounder and getting a force at the plate for the second out.

Alvarez induced the next hitter to bounce out to second baseman Clinton to escape the jam with just one run.

Roberts cracked a two-run homer in the third to boost Campbell's lead to 5-1 — and, for all intents and purposes, confirm the team's trip to National City.

Nine of the CM players are no strangers to World Series competition, having been members of the Campbell Little League All-Star team that fell to Tokyo 10-3 in the 1976 Little League World Series championship game.

They'll be no Japanese teams in National City, however, since Pony League baseball is played almost exclusively in the United States.

And they have precedent on their side. The last time the local league sent a representative to the Pony World Series, in 1964, the team came home a winner.

According to Stallings, the factors that got the Campbellites to National City were the locals' pitching depth, sound defense and team morale — not necessarily in that order.

As an example of the latter, Stallings singled out centerfielder Harold Sutherland, who was sat down in favor of Scott Freear in Saturday's game.

"Harold could have sat in the corner of the dugout and pouted," Stallings said. "Instead, he was the loudest player on our bench, was always on top of what was going on, was handing all the batters their helmets. He's a fantastic kid."

Team captain and catcher Mike Walsh was his usual commanding self behind the plate, according to Stallings — and the little backstop even came within a few feet of clearing the left field wall with a liner in the second game Sunday.

"Some of the local fans told me that of all our players, Mike was the one that impressed them the most," Stallings observed.

Friday a day to remember

FRIDAY WILL mark the 16th anniversary of one of the brightest days in Campbell history — the day the Moreland Little League captured the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

On that day, Ted Campbell, at 6'1", 200 pounds, the biggest player ever to compete in the Little League World Series, fired a no-hitter as Moreland defeated Kankakee, Ill. 3-0.
